I've come up with some changes which are outlined below: Normal mode - This is standard, run the game and join. Each player will be running as a single character. If you want you can manually change the amount of money your character starts with. Free Mode - The game runs in free mode. Run the game and join. Players will now start with their respective designated amount of money. This is to simulate the game without the use of servers. Invite Mode - This allows you to invite other players to run the game. You can be a host and invite other players to join the server. You also have to designate the amount of money you want the player to have. Doomsday Mode - This is a special mode which allows a host to spawn a Doomsday character. The host can select a faction for the character to start with. Note that the player will now have two characters. The player can now play and attack other players. Invite only - Invite only is a normal mode where the server will not run unless you run it. As soon as you run it, you can start adding people and will be able to accept them. Exchange Mode - This mode allows the host to manually exchange players money for items. This is a server only option. Nexus Mode - Nexus Mode is also server only. You can remove players from the server by kicking them. If you kick a player the server will unbalance and they will lose all money. The players are removed from the server instantly. The server will then restart and allow you to add new people. Multi Server Mode - This allows the server to run on multiple servers. Note

I have serviio files which are part of my project. When I go to the system, I can see that all my serviio files are available and set up correctly, except that I can't access them. I tried installing serviio-auth-api but it didn't work. I also tried installing serviio-admin-api but that didn't work either. fffad4f19a
