animation1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a semiconductor device and a method of fabricating the same. More particularly, the present invention relates to a semiconductor device that reduces an effective resistance of a substrate of the semiconductor device, and a method of fabricating the same. 2.
Description of the Related Art Semiconductor devices are fabricated by fabricating semiconductor devices such as transistors and capacitors in a semiconductor substrate, and then forming a metal wire on the semiconductor devices to electrically connect the semiconductor devices with each other. During the formation of the metal wire, an insulating layer is formed between the semiconductor devices and the metal wire. However, the insulating layer may crack during the formation of the metal wire. The formed crack may cause an electrical short between the metal wire and an adjacent metal wire.Molybdenum trioxides produced by the reduction of molybdenum trioxide by potassium or cesium have been used as catalyst in hydrogenation of organic compounds. It is well known that molybdenum trioxide, MoO.sub.3, is relatively unstable in air and tends to easily react with moisture to form MoO.sub.2 and MoO.sub.3, etc. This can lead to the partial or complete decomposition of the catalyst. However, molybdenum trioxide can be synthesized at relatively low temperatures, such as below
