Daily Archives: February 13, 2014 On Monday's edition of Al-Jazeera's "UpFront" on the BBC, Director of the International Center for Transitional Justice, John Jones, explained how countries like Uganda and Burundi have been able to build the "progress" they've made in human rights in the past decade or so. And while Uganda and Burundi are far from perfect, John Jones argues that they have made an enormous difference. He uses Sierra Leone as an example of what can happen if we don't just sit back and let the things play out. John Jones: "In some ways it's been the most important revolution for the last 15 years in Sierra Leone, and it's not the one that happened at the end of 1999. It's the one that happened just after the war ended when the warring parties sat down and agreed on the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. And when they agreed to that, everybody walked away, and everybody came back, and they came back with very different memories, and they've all come back and said in their own way, "I'm alive today because of that." On Thursday, Senator Tim Kaine of Virginia joined CNN's "American Morning" program to talk about a variety of issues. Tim Kaine opened the interview talking about that night's news: MATTHEWS: Some 1d6a3396d6
