1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a structure of a flash memory controller, and more particularly to a structure of a flash memory controller that can store and read a flash memory cell efficiently and can improve the capacity and operation speed of a flash memory system. 2. Description of the Related Art In general, flash memories are non-volatile memories that electrically store data and are widely used in computer systems and integrated circuits. Flash memories have a higher writing and reading speed in comparison to other non-volatile memories and can be used for storing the code of a computer system. As is shown in FIG. 1, a conventional flash memory 10 includes a plurality of word lines WL11 to WLn, a plurality of bit lines BL1 to BLm, a plurality of memory cells MC11 to MCmn, and a page buffer. The plurality of word lines WL11 to WLn constitute a word line array and the plurality of bit lines BL1 to BLm constitute a bit line array. The plurality of memory cells MC11 to MCmn are connected to the respective word lines and bit lines and receive the electric signal from the respective word lines and bit lines to store the data. The page buffer includes a pair of a bit line sense amplifier 11 and a read/write circuit 12. The bit line sense amplifier 11 amplifies the electric signal from the bit line and applies the amplified signal to the read/write circuit 12. The read/write circuit 12 reads or writes the data inputted from the outside or the signal amplified by the bit line sense amplifier 11. The write operation to the flash memory 10 will be described hereinafter. When a writing operation of the flash memory 10 is requested, the page buffer stores the data inputted from the outside into an internal page buffer or reads the data stored in the internal page buffer to the outside. The data stored in the page buffer are inputted to the read/write circuit 12 and amplified by the bit line sense amplifier 11. The read/write circuit 12 checks the data stored in the corresponding page buffer and, if the data are determined as the data to be read, then converts a control signal into an output signal. The data inputted to the read/write circuit 12 is amplified by the bit line sense amplifier 11 and the amplified signal is applied to the corresponding cell. When the flash memory 10 performs a write operation, the data to be stored are sequentially inputted from the
