The accuracy of the initial deployment of a new skill acquisition product. When a new skill acquisition system has been successfully tested, administrators are eager to shift responsibility to the smaller centers of care. What is often not well defined is the accuracy of initial deployment of the technology. Given the complexity of some skill acquisition programs, we sought to determine the proportion of patients receiving inaccurate code assignments for two novel systems. A retrospective analysis was performed of two acute care centers in an urban tertiary care referral center that had recently implemented a new CodeLink device to record vital signs and began the process of transitioning the documentation of vital signs to the CodeLink system. The total study population consisted of 21,507 unique patients with an average of 13,861 vitals recorded per patient per quarter. A total of 1,839 patients (8.5%) of the total population had a documented error in the initial code assigned. The total percentage of patients with a documented error in the initial code assigned was higher in the first 3 quarters (7.4-8.5%) than in the fourth quarter (5.1%). p Dinsmore and Williams (D&W) is a global provider of full-service support services to hospitality and travel clients and has been recognized as one of Canada's 50 Fastest Growing Companies for 14 consecutive years. Now in its 33rd year, the yearly awards program recognizes the 50 companies that have had the highest year-over-year net growth in revenues in the previous 12 months. They are determined based on revenue growth and headcount numbers from between 1 December and 31 December. "Our focus this year is on delivering on our commitment to our clients and to our people. The recognition is evidence of our performance and is a clear and strong message that D&W is exceeding our clients' expectations by delivering strategically, operationally and financially," says Steve Trech, chief executive officer, D&W.
